

♥ To my Baby ♥

the best thing that ever happened to me

I still remember the day I met you. I was so nervous that day, but the moment I saw you I was like yeah, she might be the one. I never thought I could be this happy in life, but you make it so much better every day. It's been 2 months now but it feels like I have known you forever. You are so pretty, so beautiful, so cute, sometimes really hot as well but most of all you are one of the kindest and one of the strongest people I ever met. Even with so much going on in ur life, U still smile and make others smile as well.

Every day I wake up thinking about you, missing you so so much and I've never felt that way for anyone ever. I know its kind of a cliché now but you really are my roshani, because everyday feels brighter when you are there by my side. These past few weeks were kind of difficult because of some of the fights we had, but we survived that too because we both know this between us is something special.

In the end I would like to say that I am so happy I met a such a wonderful person like you, you are the best girlfriend anyone could ever ask for. I love you so fucking much, have a great birthday, keep living, keep laughing and remember I'm always there for you.

